ABSTRACT

A method and apparatus for adding and updating protocol inspection knowledge/information to a firewall system during operation and without interrupting firewall services. The invention allows inspection modules, which contain protocol information, to be added and updated to the system without requiring a service restart of the firewall system.

10

5